

BITACHON WEEKLY

BY: RABBI YEHUDAH MANDEL SHLITA

פרשת בהר-בחוקתי תשפ"ו

Whichever Type of Avoda You Chose, It's All Good

It is known that R' Ahron Kotler Zatzal was always quoting Rashi in this week's Parsha, who says that: אם בחקתי means: שתהיו עמלים בתורה Hashem wants that we should toil in His Torah. Yet, in Mishneh Torah, in Parshas Ki Savo, it says: תבא כח מז that our problems come from a lack of Simcha. Of course both are true, and if you excel in both areas, you can surely expect a good life (maybe even one area can also give you a good life). Before Lag Ba'omer I was asked: What should people do on the bus to Meron; learn, or sing?

I answered that some people should Davka learn, and others should Davka sing. For some, singing could be Bittul Torah Mamash, and for others, learning could be the cause of lots of their problems. And for some, "Not worrying so much what they do, and to be happy either way", is the perfect answer. "Whatever you end up doing will be the A-1 sort of Avoda. Don't complicate yourself".

I heard this many times from R' Gershon Liebman Zatzal. He was very relaxed, and I believe it was mainly in the type of Bitachon that he was super liberal. Either having Bitachon in "getting what you want", or being M'kabel (accepting) the situation אלעס איז "It's all good!" Even if you end up doing the "wrong" thing, Hashem will still understand you, and accept it. He is: מלא full of compassion!

Hashem Likes Happy, Relaxed People

Some people think that Yiddishkeit is a straightjacket and a jail. Of course, having normal, healthy restrictions is the best M'halech, and: אין לך בן חורין אלא מי שפוסק the "true" free man is the person who learns (and follows) the Torah. But getting carried away with doing everything just perfect can be the opposite of Ratzon Hashem who likes happy relaxed people. Novardokers were against Frumkeit, and I myself heard: ברבים publicly how one of the old Novardokers remarked in public: זעה יצחק הרע "Very good", this refers to the Yetzer Hara.

In 1492 the Jews of Spain were expelled by

Make It a Point to Praise Klal Yisroel

A famous Adam Gadol who was a Talmid of R' Ahron Kotler Zatzal was asked by the: מנהל principal for a girl school, if the girls may go to an amusement park.

He was a known Kano'i and he said: "For sure not!". Three years later, he was asked the same question, and he said: "For sure, yes!" When he was asked what happened that made him change his mind, he replied that three years ago was a different world than now. People are always changing, and you have to always be in touch with a Rebbe who is a Gadol B'Torah to find out the latest.

Despite the general: ירידת הדורות (decline of the generations) and the importance of not being involved in an Avoda that you are not: ראוי worthy for (which can be caused by viewing yourself like you're from a Dor that you have no Shaychus with), there are still instances where you can actually upgrade your level.

Ever since I was born, I've always heard how the previous generations were much better, and it is important not to imitate Madregos that are not for us. However, recently, there has been loads of Aliya (progress) in Torah and in Mussar. Working on Bitachon and Middos is more and more prevalent. My mother-in-law once remarked that the sincerity of the young girls is comparable to "Der Heim".

It is Mamash a: משמנה מן השמים gift from Shamayim, how Hashem in His greatness has such a pure and holy Dor, despite a Goyishe background full of Hefkeirus (free-for-all) and Z'nus and all kinds of fake stupidities. אשכנחנו מה טוב חלקנו. How fortunate is our lot! I make it a point to praise Klal Yisroel. It gives Hashem Nachas, and can be M'vatel G'zeiros (cancel harsh decrees).

King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella, unless they accepted to convert. However, Don Yitzchok Abarbanel was offered to stay even if he kept his religion, since he was an invaluable asset to the country, with his financial expertise. He refused, but he offered a colossal amount of money to the king and queen if they allow the Jews to stay.

The story goes that they agreed, but at the last minute, Torquemada, the wicked Galach (priest) vetoed the motion. Who was this guy? He was super "frum"; he never ate meat, and he slept only on hard wood. He was Oisgehalten (morally upstanding) and wouldn't be bribed. In the name of the "holy" Catholic Church and Yoshka Pondrik, he succeeded in causing indescribable pain to Klal Yisroel for over 1000 years, with his infamous inquisition.

Queen Isabella was also a super Frumie, who worried about Gehinom all the time. This is an extreme illustration of fake Frumkeit. L'havdil, if a Yid gets carried away in trying to do the right thing in Avodas Hashem, and he ends up being a "Frumie" who hurts himself and others, I'm sure Hashem understands his good intentions. But surely, being the "frum" type is not so simple, and Gedolei Yisroel criticized Frumkeit.

The Baalei Bitachon were happy, relaxed people, and didn't even come across so serious. Of course they were super-holy in their own way, but they used their Sechel. And in Novardok, making sure you are: דרְכֵי נֹעֵם "pleasant" was #1.

Novordak

This Friday (25 Iyar) is the Yahrtzeit of R' Dovid Bleicher Zatzal, who was a Talmid of the Alter of Novardok, and Rosh Yeshiva of Bais Yosef in Poland before the Second World War.

R' Dovid Bleicher had a heart of gold. When he came to Novardok, he became the #1 of the Alter, and he picked up the Novardok Shita very quickly. Whenever his parents sent him money, he always gave it away to the needy Bachurim of his Yeshiva. I've heard many, many stories of Novardokers doing such things; i.e., to be Mafkir your personal world for the Rabim.

R' Dovid Bleicher Zatzal was the Rosh Yeshiva of one of the main Novardok branches, in Mezritch. He was a person who wouldn't Chanfa flatter anybody. The "Rosh HaKahal" in Mezritch was a wealthy person, and powerful person. He was part of the government, and was "in" with the most important people of the country. He was active in helping the community with Chesed organizations. He was very tough, and people were terrified of him. Everybody bowed his head in his presence.

He wasn't known for Ahavas Torah, and he was openly against the Yeshiva. R' Dovid Bleicher once needed a permit, which was available only through getting this person's signature. Without having another choice, he went to him with his brother-in-law, R' Shmuel Panitz Zatzal. The "Rosh HaKahal" ridiculed them, and made fun of all the Yeshivos in general, and especially Yeshivas Mezritch.

Needless to say, he refused their request. R' Dovid immediately gave him a tongue lashing for hischutzpa, and his hatred for Torah and Yeshiva'leit. Then he turned to his brother-in-law and said: "Come, let's get out of here. We have no Eisek (business) with this person". Those who were present were horrified. They never saw anyone talk like this to this person. The whole world melted in his presence.

This made a big impression on the "Rosh HaKahal". The next time there was a community meeting concerning the Yeshiva, he got up, and said: Although I am is against the Yeshiva, I still can't refuse the Rosh Yeshiva who is an Adam Gadol.

Most of his students had been part of the great exodus of all the Novardokers who escaped from Russia to Poland. When the communists took over Russia, they banned learning Torah. (The Steipler, R' Gershon, R' Nekritz, etc. were all formerly in Russia, and they all crossed the border with tremendous Nissim). Later, they had trouble from the Polish government, since they were missing citizenship papers.
